OAHU BEAUTIES SHOWN IN FILM AT THE POPULAR

"A Mexican Spy in America" is the title of another McRae film that will be shown at the Popular theater next week. A private exhibition was given yesterday, the press being invited to view the picture, which deals largely with affairs military on Oahu and, incidentally, presents views of a number of beautiful scenes around the island. The beauties of Ft. Shafter and Moanalua are used to good advantage in this film which, so far as plot is concerned, is very ordinary. However, the army is shown in action in a number of scenes, while items of interest at the county fair so well presented at Schofield Barracks last spring are also made use of by the McRae company.

The film is most distinct, evidencing the fact that it is a "first run," and John Wise is there in all his glory as a thespian, assuming the role of a Mexican general and carrying it out in splendid fashion.

The Popular holds 600 at least, and the hope is to have it well filled at each service.

"ROUGH STUFF" NOT TO APPEAR IN FRESHMEN'S STUNTS OF THIS YEAR

The class of 1915 is making a great departure in the Freshman day customs. The annual parades, speeches, stunts, etc., of the freshmen are to be held this afternoon on Punahou campus. But the old custom of ducking the freshmen in the tanks after the parade is to be done away with this year. This change is due to the request of many parents and to the advice of Prof. Griffiths, who fears serious accidents to some members of the class.

MAGEE COMPANY IN BETTER ROLE IN LATEST BILL

The new bill at the Bijou, "Down on the Farm," has put a different face on the prospects of the Jack Magee Comedy Company, for it is a decided change from what has been given before, and, happily, a change for the better. In "Down on the Farm," there has been paring down of the slapstick acting, the sort that might seem funny to a tribe of Blackfoot Indians, and in its place there has been introduced some real funny work.

The playlet itself is a vehicle for lots of real good laugh-producing work by those behind the footlights, and the company hit the right pitch in its selection.

A traveling show troupe is delayed on the road by an accident to the vehicle, and they have to put up at a farm house for awhile. It is during their stay at the farm house that it all happens. The four leading characters of the laughable sketch fit their parts to a nicety.

Lyndon appeared to advantage in a drinking son, "Absinthe Frappe," and the selections offered by Maxie Mitchell and Dorothy Raymond were well received.

There is a chorus girls' contest on tonight. In addition to the regular show, "Down on the Farm" is worth while.

PROF. VON LUSCHAN RECITES HISTORY OF ANCIENT HITTITES

Before an audience of leading local educators, clergymen and representative business men at the University Club last night, Prof. Felix von Luschan, noted anthropologist and member of the faculty of the University of Berlin, Germany, told the story of the Hittites, the ancient Hamitic race of Asia Minor and Northern Syria. Professor von Luschan's lecture, which was illustrated with many beautiful lantern views, was delivered in his usual convincing manner, and sufficiently devoid of technicalities so as to make his presentation of this ancient race easily understood.

As an introduction, Professor von Luschan dwelt briefly upon his five excavation expeditions to Northern Syria, bringing out the revelations which crowned many a German scientist's work with success. Until the Germans commenced excavation expeditions, he said, the "Town of the North," or Shammaal, an old Hittite capital, was little known. Excavations, however, revealed a wonderful sight in the form of fortresses, temples, the royal palace, gateways and towers.

The professor, in describing the uncovered city, spoke in part as follows: "The oldest place so far found is remarkable for its two big towers, each with walls of 30 feet thickness. It belongs to about 1400 B. C. To about the same time belongs a great series of sculptures found in the principal gateway of the fortress.

They are very crude, but show the anthropological type of the inhabitants, with very short and high heads and big noses.

"Up to about 1000 B. C. the town had been held by the Hittites, but was later invaded by Semitic nomads, who brought Semitic divinities, Semitic language and Semitic alphabetical writing with them.

"The use of alphabetic writing means one of the greatest progressions in the history of mankind. The discovery of fire was the first of these progressive steps, then the use of metals, and later the discovery of writing, then the discovery of an alphabet, and finally the invention of printing. Of the five great steps perhaps the discovery of an alphabet was the most important, and this step was made about 1000 B. C. in Northern Syria by a Semitic tribe.

"In Senjiri were found the four oldest and longest alphabetical inscriptions known till now. They are of equal interest to the linguists and the historian. The letters are the same that were often used by the Phoenicians and the Greeks. All modern alphabets have their origin in this Semitic alphabet, that is now nearly 3000 years old."
